SALEM UCC MISSION STATEMENT

To praise and glorify God through Jesus Christ, Salem United Church of Christ will be a nurturing family that shares the Good News with people of all ages. Our congregation will invite and warmly welcome others into this faith community. Empowered by the Holy Spirit, we will create and maintain places and programs, which satisfy needs and nurture spiritual growth while recognizing and utilizing the diverse gifts and talents of all.

July / August 2017
Volume 67 No. 7

As we continue this journey through the five practices of fruitful congregations, these ideas are more clearly coming into focus. Without radical hospitality, we will not grow as a faith community. Without passionate worship, we will not feed our souls, without intentional faith development, we will not grow into our faith. Without risk-taking mission and service, we are not living the call to love our neighbor. Without extravagant generosity, we are not trusting in God’s abundance. We need all of these practices in order to be a fruitful congregation.

We are at the half-way point in our sessions. Having just completed the intentional faith development session, we have had hours of conversation about what ‘intentional’ looks like. The chapter of our study begins telling the stories of our faith from different places in time and ends with this story.....

...a young woman pulls into the church parking lot just before the session begins. She’s running a little late. Like most Tuesdays, she’s still wearing her suit from work, going through her evening blur of movement from the office to school to soccer practice to drive-thru to church. Her son dumps his fast-food wrappings in the trash bin beside the door as he carries his school books into the building. He’ll work on homework while Mom does her “Bible thing.” She slips into the room as the video begins. Her closest friend is there and welcomes her into the seat beside her. They had signed up for this together, deciding to “just do it” after years of wanting to study the Bible. The class also includes two couples; two older women; a graduate student from the university; and the leader, recently retired from the bank. She didn’t know most of these people before they signed up for the Bible study, but she’s been amazed at how much she’s learned from them as they’ve shared their thoughts about faith and God and Scripture and about how much she’s come to care for them as they’ve shared their lives. The Tuesday evening study has become a time of refreshment for her each week, an oasis of encouragement, learning, and support. For ten minutes, they listen to a seminary professor on the video talk about the stories of Moses, his birth and marriage and encounter with God. Then they walk through the readings, sharing observations and questions.

Every day for the past week, she has spent time reading Scripture, sometimes lost in the archaic practices and customs and confused by the stories and characters. She has so many questions about God. She wasn’t sure she had time for this kind of study, and sometimes even now she thinks she’s wasting her time. Moses seems way back then and way over there. Then the leader talks about Moses’ call- the bush, the fear and humility, and the excuses and justifications given to avoid doing what God asks. Her stomach tightens as she hears people tell about times they’ve felt called by God to do something and have repeated the same excuses themselves. She looks at her own notes from her reading through the week, and she sees the questions she wrote. “How does God call people? Sometimes I feel called, but I’ve never heard voices or seen a burning bushes. Am I being called?” She shares her questions with others and discovers that they wrestle with the same thoughts. The evening ends with prayer, and after she drives home with her son, sends him to bed, and nestles herself into her favorite chair, she finds herself praying, asking, and hoping, “What will you have me do, Lord?”

Food for thought....

There must be a reason that you’re connected to the church. Why church and not something else? What are you seeking? And how can this community of faith help? The Five Practices team looks forward to having a conversation with you about this during our Membership Gathering which is planned for Wednesday, July 12th at 6:30 pm. – Marsha

THANK YOU

Thank you for all the prayers and kind thoughts for our family at the time of the loss of our daughter, Gerilou. So many cards, hugs and the delicious meal brought to our home. Thank you to Rev. Hoppert for the comforting phone call and the pleasant visit with Dale Miller which we enjoyed very much.

It is a good feeling to have a caring church family.

Jerry & Donna Picard

I'd like to say thank you to the members of the Care Meal Ministry for bringing a scrumptious homemade meal to me after my release from Rocky Knoll. It was so very much appreciated.

MISSION & STEWARDSHIP COMMITTEE

As part of our Five Practices workshops, we are learning about risk-taking mission and service. Our Mission & Stewardship Committee - including Mary Bender, Tom Daigle, Rev. Hoppert, Faye Hughes, Mary Mullen and Jennie Schoenefeld is responding placing a regular focus on mission and ministry opportunities.

We have had a couple of meetings this year, and our regular Five for Five offerings are underway, and we are receiving mixed results.

One Great Hour of Sharing had a goal of $800. A total of $887 was received.

Strengthen the Church will be wrapping up June 25, and our goal of $400 is currently met with gifts of $253.

Also, our ongoing OCWM offering has only received $6,134.00 of our $15,000 annual goal.

To help support these missions, we're in the process of facilitating freewill donations for each of these missions. Every person or team who hosts coffee hour will be able to decide which of the missions they would like to support.

While our outreach missions through the UCC are important, we also want to help focus on Salem's other small group missions, such as Red Tent and Helping Hands. We are hoping to help share the work of these groups and encourage new participation. We are hopeful that each of these groups will help us to share in their mission and help them to grow by developing an FAQ sheet about their group. These frequently asked questions will be used to provide some background to the membership, helping them to find a team that's the right fit for them.

We are also continuing our partnership with Fairview School through their summer garden project. The school has some raised beds and they're looking for help tending their gardens. More information will be forthcoming.

Finally, for the past couple of years we've been talking about renewing our commitment to Sheboygan County Interfaith Organization (SCIO), but we have really fallen short. We have a $1,000 goal for support of this organization, which is focused on helping women build new lives through their work at Bridgeway, which is a group living facility serving up to six families at a time. Bridgeway is committed to providing a pathway to a better future for young women and their families. Unlike other abuse shelters, Bridgeway offers emotional and spiritual counseling, job and career counseling, and mandatory drug and alcohol counseling where that is a factor.

Every fall SCIO has a fundraiser called Home for the Holidays. We are going to support that fundraiser through a special offering on July 23, which we are deeming "Christmas in July." We hope that you are able to help support this mission. More details will be coming, but please take this opportunity to learn more about Bridgeway through these links:

FROM THE PARISH NURSE . . .

If anyone has medical equipment you no longer need and would like to donate it to someone in our church family that could benefit from it, please let me know – Robbie Gremminger 980-3977.

We potentially are on our way to getting a CPR class together. I need 3 more people and we'd like to hold it on a Monday later morning at this point. If interested, call Robbie Gremminger 980-3977. The cost is $40 but the rewards are great!

Please let me know as your Parish Nurse if I can help you in anyway. I'm happy to visit you at home or church and I'm easily reachable by phone. Thank you Robbie Gremminger 980-3977.

HIGH BLOOD CHOLESTEROL

Cholesterol is a waxy substance that is produced by the human body and is also found in animal products. Cells need cholesterol to function. Unfortunately, any excess cholesterol in the blood builds up inside the arteries. Cholesterol deposits (arteriosclerosis) are major causes of heart attacks and strokes.

A high cholesterol level in your blood is a risk factor for heart disease and stroke. The higher your cholesterol level, the higher the risk. However, not all cholesterol is bad.

Good and Bad Cholesterol

Fat travels through your blood stream attached to protein, in a combination called a lipoprotein. Two lipoproteins are the carriers of cholesterol: low-density lipoprotein (LDL, sometimes called bad cholesterol) and high-density lipoprotein (HDL, sometimes called good cholesterol).

LDL acts like a fat delivery truck. It picks up cholesterol from the liver and delivers it to the cells. When more cholesterol is ready for delivery than the cells can take, LDL deposits the extra cholesterol on the artery walls. A lot of LDL cholesterol in your blood increases your risk of heart disease and stroke.

HDL works like a garbage truck. It removes excess cholesterol from the bloodstream and takes it to the liver. A lot of HDL cholesterol in your blood decreases your risk of heart disease and stroke.

Cholesterol Screening

It's a good idea to have your cholesterol checked by age 35 for men and 45 for women. After that, testing every five years is appropriate for most people. If you have any of the following risk factors, have your cholesterol checked more often and start at an earlier age.

- Family history of early heart attack (before age 55 in father or brother; before age 65 in mother or sister)
- Current cigarette smoking
- High blood pressure (over 140/90) or taking high blood pressure medication
- Diabetes

Experts don't agree on the best schedule for cholesterol testing. Discuss with your doctor the schedule that is best for you, based on your risk factors.

What do the numbers mean? Doctors don't agree on which cholesterol numbers are most useful in determining your risk of heart disease. The most commonly used values are listed here. The importance of these numbers will vary depending on your risk factors.
Desirable: All of the following: Total cholesterol below 200; HDL cholesterol above 35; LDL cholesterol below 130. Borderline high-risk: One or more of the following: Total cholesterol 200-239; LDL cholesterol 130-159. High-risk: One or more of the following: Total cholesterol 240 or higher; HDL cholesterol below 35; LDL cholesterol above 160.

High cholesterol is one of many factors that increase your risk for heart disease. Smoking, high blood pressure, diabetes, family history, and lack of exercise also increase your heart disease risk.

If your total cholesterol is over 200, consider tests to measure your HDL and LDL levels, which can help further clarify your actual risk. For example, if your HDL and LDL levels are in the desirable range, a total cholesterol level over 200 may be of less concern.

For most people, a low-fat diet and exercise are all they need to lower cholesterol. People who have very high cholesterol or heart disease (or who are at very high risk) may need medication as well as exercise and a low-fat diet to lower their cholesterol.

How to Reduce Cholesterol

- Eat less total fat. Because a high-fat diet increases cholesterol, just cutting back on cholesterol is not enough. You must cut back on total fats as well.
- Buy cooking oil that is liquid at room temperature (such as canola, corn, soybean, sunflower, or cottonseed oil) and use less of it.
- Eat two or three serving (three to four ounces) of baked or broiled fish per week. Most fish contain omega-3 fatty acids that help lower blood cholesterol and triglycerides. In general, fish with darker flesh, such as mackerel, lake trout, herring, salmon, and halibut, have more omega-3 oils. The safety and value of fish-oil supplement is not yet known.
- Exercise more. Exercise increases your protective HDL cholesterol level.
- Quit smoking to increase your HDL levels and reduce your risk of heart disease.
- Lose weight. Losing even 5 or 10 pounds can increase HDL levels and lower your total cholesterol.
- Eat more soluble fiber, which lowers overall cholesterol.
- Attend a low-fat diet workshop; consult a registered dietitian to learn ways to lower your fat intake to 30 percent or less of total calories, based on your goal.

Reversing Heart Disease

A low-fat diet and lifestyle changes may actually reverse the process of heart disease and help reopen arteries that are clogged by arteriosclerosis. Participants in the Lifestyle Heart Trial followed a vegetarian diet containing less than 10 percent of calories from fat and no caffeine. They also stopped smoking, got 30 minutes of exercise at least six days a week, and practiced a relaxation technique (deep breathing, stretching, progressive muscle relaxation, etc.) for one hour each day. After a year, over 80 percent of the participants had lost weight, reduced their cholesterol, and most importantly, reduced the amount of blockage in their coronary arteries.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

High blood pressure (hypertension) occurs when the pressure of your blood against the artery walls is higher than normal.

Doctors rate blood pressure for adults over 18 in the following categories:

- Normal: below 130/85
- High-normal: 130-139/85-89
- High: over 140/90

High blood pressure usually has no symptoms. However, it increases your risk of stroke, heart attack, and kidney disease. Risks of these diseases are lowest for people whose blood pressure is below 120/80.

Risk factors for high blood pressure include:

- African-American race
- Overweight
- Family history of high blood pressure
- Inactive lifestyle
- Excess alcohol intake
- Excess sodium (salt) intake
- Use of certain medications, including birth control pills, steroids, decongestants, and anti-inflammatories

In some cases, high blood pressure can be prevented. Many people with high blood pressure can control it by changing their lifestyle and may not require medication.

Taking the following steps is especially important if you are in one of the high-risk groups listed above.

Prevention

- Lose weight. This is especially important if you tend to gain weight around the waist rather than in the hips and thighs. A weight loss of only 10 pounds can lower blood pressure.
- Limit your alcohol intake to two drinks or less per day. Too much alcohol increases blood pressure.
- Exercise regularly. Thirty to 45 minutes of brisk walking three to five times a week will help lower your blood pressure (and will also help you lose weight).
- Reduce your salt intake. This is a good idea for nearly everyone. But for as many as half of those with high blood pressure, reducing salt intake helps control the condition.
- Make sure you get enough potassium, calcium and magnesium in your diet. Potassium-rich foods include orange juice and potatoes. Magnesium-rich foods include leafy green vegetables and whole grains. Reduce the saturated fat in your diet. Saturated fat is found in animal products (milk, cheese, and meat). Limiting these foods will help you lose weight and also lower your risk of heart disease.
- Stop smoking. Smoking increases your risk of heart disease and stroke.

Home Treatment

- If you check your blood pressure and it is very high, such as 200/120, or if you are having a severe headache or blurred vision, call your doctor immediately.
- Follow the prevention tips above even more closely if you have high blood pressure.
- Take any prescribed blood pressure medications exactly as directed.
- Learn how to take your blood pressure at home.

When to call a Health Professional

- If you have had two or more blood pressure readings of 140 or higher systolic or 90 or higher diastolic--call if either one or both numbers are high.

- If blood pressure remains high even after you have been on blood pressure medication

FINANCE COMMITTEE

Just a brief reminder that monthly financial reports are always available in the office.

We've been blessed by God, and we are thankful to our members that reflect the many blessings they receive through their financial support of the church.

However, the summer doldrums are officially here. On average our general fund gifts are about $2,000 below this same time last year. Of course our financial needs remain the same.

We all find it difficult to discuss finances, but we will be working to change that. We must bear in mind that when we pass the annual budget we are all making a commitment to each other to support the budget and the church.

As part of a community of faith this doesn't necessarily mean supporting the parts you like and refusing to support the parts you may not like.

Being a church is not about creating a club or being consumers of a weekly message. It's about being part of something that was created to serve God. It's about asking ourselves what God wants of us, and then acting in a manner - through participation, personal and financial support - that reflects and helps a community and family of faith that is committed to sharing God's love in the world.

Please, prayerfully consider the blessings that God has bestowed upon you and use that as a guide to how you respond.

Yours in Christ,
Mary Mullen

MEMBERSHIP GATHERING

All members of Salem are invited to join in a time of conversation on Wednesday, July 12, beginning at 6:30 pm, in Fellowship Hall. Consistory members will be hosting this event which is intended to open communications about important topics in the life of our church. Discussions will include items on the Consistory agenda in recent months such as kitchen updates, Five Practices, "Shift from Maintenance to Mission," creation of "Interior Master Plan", stewardship, membership, staffing, and others. The evening is designed to be an informational forum with opportunity for questions and answers. We hope you will be able to attend. Your participation is greatly appreciated and valued. If you are unable to attend, but would like to discuss these or other topics, please contact Mary Bender or another Consistory member. Thank you. Peace and blessings be with you!
